Investments through SIP, however, touch a new high in July. ● Mid- and small-cap funds get most outflows. ● Large-cap focused, flexi-cap and tax saving ELSS plans see outflows.

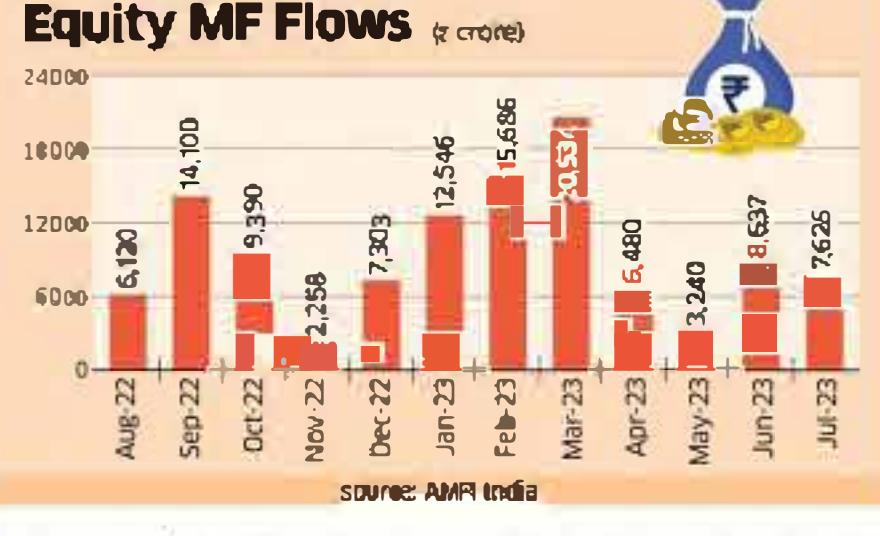

Profit-booking at Highs Slows Flows into Active Equity Funds

Our Bureau

Mumbai: Flows into actively managed equity mutual funds in July slowed by 11.7% compared to the previous month as record high markets prompted unit-holders to lock in some profits, especially in large-cap oriented schemes. Investments through the monthly systematic investment plan (SIPs) remained popular with contributions in mutual fund schemes through this route touching a new high of ₹62.45 crore in July as against ₹14.73 crore in June. Equity schemes received ₹7,825 crore in July as against ₹8,880 crore in June.

Investors booked some profits, taking advantage of markets at all-time highs," said Manish Mehta, joint president and national head sales, Kotak Mahindra Asset Management. "While continuing allocation through SIPs, they made lump sum allocations back on days where markets slipped sharply."

Within equity schemes, most of

The hybrid scheme category saw inflows of ₹12,421 crore aided largely by demand for arbitrage funds to the tune of ₹10,075 crore. Tax advantages compared to debt products are prompting investors to consider arbitrage schemes, which are taxed like an equity product. Short term capital gains tax for an equity product is 15%, individuals at the highest tax bracket are taxed at 30% for gains from debt funds.

Liquid funds received inflows of ₹51,938 crore in July. "Given the current interest rate scenario and uncertainty over the direction of interest rates in the country, it appears that many investors chose to stay cautious and continue to invest in categories with one-year or less maturity profile, since they carry relatively lesser interest rate risk," said Himanshu Srivastava, associate director — manager research, Morningstar India. Low duration funds saw inflows of ₹7,027 crore, while money market funds saw inflows of ₹8,608 crore.

Flows were into mid-and small-cap funds. Large-caps, focused, flexi-cap and tax saving ELSS schemes saw new inflows. Investors allocated ₹41,711 crore to mid-cap funds and ₹1,623 crore to mid-cap funds. Multi-cap funds, which invest in a mix of large-cap, mid-cap and small cap stocks, saw inflows of ₹2,500 crore. Investors withdrew ₹880 crore from large cap funds, ₹932 crore from flexi-cap funds, ₹1,0610 from focused funds and ₹327 crore from ELSS schemes. Assets under management of mutual funds, however, touched an all-time high of ₹6.27 lakh crore aided by the rise of the markets to all-time highs, and inflows into debt and arbitrage funds showed data from the Association of Mutual Funds of India (AMFI).

ADDING TO INFLATION RISKS

Surplus Liquidity in Banking System Surges to 14-mth High

High govt expenditure, RBI's forex interventions and return of ₹2,000 notes help boost liquidity

Bhaskar Dutta@etinvestgroup.com

Mumbai: It has been nearly three months since India's central bank decided to withdraw from circulation the highest denomination banknote in the nation's commercial banks. One of the consequences of the move is surplus banking system liquidity, which surged to a 14-month high in August, even though the formal stance of the banker of last resort to withdraw monetary accommodation to prevent inflation from rearing its ugly head.

Surplus liquidity, as measured by the quantum of extra funds that banks park at the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) absorption window, averaged ₹2.68 lakh crore a day in August, the highest since June 2022.

Tight government expenditure in the first half of a poll-studded fiscal year, the RBI's interventions in the foreign exchange market amidst strong overseas inflows in Indian equities and a greater-than-expected quantum of ₹2,000 notes in the banking system have helped drive liquidity.

With hardening food prices likely to push headline retail inflation above the RBI's tolerance band of 2.6%, July questions have arisen about the impact of surplus liquidity on price pressures, even if offset. The currently large surplus liquidity in the banking system can translate into higher asset prices and thus pose upside inflation risks. The RBI will detail its next monetary policy statement on Thursday.

While we expect the RBI to continue with the 'withdrawal of accommodation' stance, this quickly deluge could still ring in some caution as it could impede so-called inflation mandate," Madhav Arora, economist at Emkay Global, said in a statement.

Govt Role at IIMs to Get Bigger after Parl Passes Bill

Bill mandates board to take President's nod for removing or appointing a director

Prachi Verma Dhadhwani
& Sreekrishna Basu

New Delhi | Bengaluru: Indian Institutes of Management (IIMs) are set to see a bigger role from the government with both houses of Parliament passing the Indian Institutes of Management (Amendment) Bill 2023.

While some academics said the move will increase accountability, some others feel the shift in the powers of the premium business schools can妨害.

The latest amendments to the DM Act seek to designate the President of India as 'Visitor' of every IIM covered by the Act. Among other provisions, it mandates the board to obtain approval of the Visitor for appointing or removing a director.

"The latest amendment to the DM Act designates the President of India as 'Visitor' of every IIM covered by the Act. Among other provisions, it mandates the board to obtain approval of the Visitor for appointing or removing a director."

"Things were better off without this amendment. IIMs cannot be used to carry on the government's agenda by appointing their own people," an IIM director said on

"The DM Act before this gave a free run to all boards of governors; some boards enjoyed their little autonomy. Some directors would do whatever they were the supreme authority of the institutes and we have seen uncertain cases where some autocratic directors," said Prafulla Agnihotri, director of IM Sirmaur.

"Now that the President has become the Visitor, the boards will come under the direct supervision of the president and the government, which is a good thing because if the right directors not in place, he may not take the institute forward. The other implication is that it lays more responsibility on the shoulders of the government. They need to be judicious in their decisions, otherwise the progress of the IIMs will be halted," added Agnihotri.

The amendments will create an additional layer of approvals for the appointment of the director and other senior leadership members of these institutes, said Amitabha Bhattacharya, partner-education at strategic consulting major EY Parthenon.

"The same objective could have been achieved by strengthening the process and governance around senior appointments and encouraging the institutions to strengthen the long-range strategic planning process," he said.

Shrikriti Kulkarni, chairperson of the board of governors of IIM Calcutta, said IIMs have three types of autonomy: academic, financial and administrative. "These amendments do not affect any of the above," he said.

"Autonomy and accountability are two sides of the same coin," Kulkarni said. "The board, the director and the academic council continue to be accountable to the people of India. There is nothing to suggest that the autonomy and academic freedoms of the IIMs is being reversed."
